The SBE Assessment Engine

A NEW ERA OF EMOTIONALLY INTELLIGENT ED-TECH

For years, I've been supporting learners through marking, moderating, and guiding them through the mysteries of English Language and Literature assessments.

In 2025, something shifted. I realised I could build tools that didn't just replicate what teachers do — they could amplify it.

Tools that feel warm.
Tools that feel human.
Tools that make learning less intimidating and more empowering.

The Study Beyond English Assessment Engine was born.

A very human beginning

The first public version launched with excitement... and a spelling slip right at the top of the page.

"Practise/practice."

A tiny mistake.
A very human one.
And the perfect reminder of what I want this project to stand for:

- Learning is messy.
- Growth is visible.
- Mistakes are part of the process.

If I can model that openly, maybe it helps someone else feel brave enough to try, too.

What the tool can already do
The early stages of the engine are now live, offering:

- A Level and GCSE English Language and Literature question generation
- A built-in writing space
- Automatic marking
- AO-specific breakdowns
- Banded feedback that feels like a teacher beside you
- Gentle plagiarism flags
- Student/teacher/parent modes
- Full accessibility controls

These foundations matter — because they're the base for everything that comes next.

The Roadmap: Stages 5–14 and Beyond
After refining Stage 4, I built and installed Stages 5, 6, and 7, and mapped out a long-term development arc that now reaches Stage 14, with future stages already sketched.

Stage 5 — PDF Export

Branded, downloadable PDFs for revision, teaching, portfolios, and sharing.

Stage 6 — Model Text Generator + Difficulty Levels

This is where the engine becomes a full mock-exam generator:

- Original, copyright-safe texts
- Difficulty toggles
- GCSE→A Level bridge mode
- Multiple classroom versions
- Parent-friendly explanations

Stage 7 — Enhanced Feedback Engine

More personalised, emotionally intelligent feedback with clearer next steps.

Stages 8–14 (Full Roadmap)

- Multi-question mock papers
- Teacher dashboard + analytics

- Parent guidance mode
- Revision pathways
- Voice-to-text accessibility
- Cross-board compatibility
- Adaptive learning engine

This isn't a short-term project.
It's a long-term, evolving learning companion.

Why I'm Building This
Because English shouldn't feel mysterious.
Because feedback should feel human.
Because every learner deserves clarity, warmth, and a sense of progress.
Because technology should lift people up — not replace them.

This project is built on emotional intelligence, accessibility, and the belief that learning should feel safe.

⬭ Support the Project
The tool is — and will remain — free for as long as possible.

Thank you for being part of this journey

Your encouragement, messages, and excitement genuinely fuel this work.
This is only the beginning — and I can't wait to share each new stage as it arrives.
